

Hip Replacement (inpatient)

A surgery package to replace one hip for patients who have never had that hip replaced.

About The Procedure

Many people with pain and dysfunction caused by osteoarthritis of the hip can benefit from non-operative treatments. When conservative measures are not enough, many patients can find relief from their symptoms through surgical correction. Among the procedures that can help is a total replacement of the hip joint, also known as a total hip arthroplasty.

When considering hip replacement, it is important to have the right surgeon. Does your surgeon have a lot of experience? Does he focus on joint replacement surgery? Will he take the time to understand your situation and goals?

Our hip replacement surgeons are absolutely focused on hip replacement surgery. Each has years of experience, does his own pre-operative evaluations, carries out your surgery, and has an absolute commitment to service. Many have been involved in developing the techniques and technology that are today industry standard. They are some of the most accomplished joint replacement surgeons in the world. If you are looking for quality, they our joint replacement surgeons are your solution.
